The News reiterates the statement that a petition for the pardon of Walworth is in the hands of Gov. Dix, and that he has sent to the District Attorney for papers in the case.

Scandal of the Lucca Divorce Suit.

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—Berlin papers contain a letter from Baron Von Rhaden, divorced husband of Mme. Lucca, repudiating and denouncing what he terms villainous practices practiced on him in New York in the divorce suit. He says: "Leaving untouched all their shameful antecedents, I, last autumn, laid before the proper court in Berlin a complaint for divorce, on the ground of malicious abandonment, and this proceeding is taking its regular course. The accusations raised against me, and through which in connection with perjury and other crimes success has apparently been obtained, I declare to be most perfect untruths, as also are the declarations attributed to a witness who is not even named. The reason for beginning the proceedings commenced in such a sudden and unheard-of manner, and by this act of violence in New York, can only be found in the news reported in the journals that Lucca had already been married to Major Von Wallhofen." The Baron denies having received notice of proceedings began for a divorce in New York, and states that he has moved in the court which granted the decree for its annullment.

[illegible] the Slavery of Italian Youths.

NEW YORK, August 1.—Two Italian boys have [illegible] before the Consul General of Italy and [illegible] to be protected against their [illegible], Carrone, whom they charge with having inflicted upon them the most barbarous [illegible]. The boys were given by their parents to Carrone for a consideration of $40, with the understanding that they will be well taken care of and taught music.

[illegible] Depredations in Texas.

NEW YORK, August 1.—A letter from Fort Black, Texas, says the forays of Indians are increasing to an alarming extent. Scarcely a day passes but the body of some isolated frontiersman is found. Stock and horses also are frequently run off from seemingly secure settlements. The letter says these things happen notwithstanding [illegible] are occurring the country.

WASHINGTON CITY.

[illegible] in the California Land [illegible]

WASHINGTON, July 31.—In reply to Surveyor General Hardenburg's telegraphic dispatch announcing that the Sheriff of San Francisco held possession of his office and would break open the safe to gain possession of the Los Animos patent for 6,000 acres of land, Commissioner Drummond telegraphed to hold the Los Animos patent, consult the U. S. District Attorney and take all legal and necessary steps to prevent forcible seizure of patents. Attorney General Williams also telegraphed to the U. S. Attorney there to consult with the Surveyor General and take all necessary steps to prevent interference with the office. This is regarded as rather remarkable, the local Court, it is said, having no right whatever to interfere with the U. S. authorities.

[illegible] Carriers for San Francisco.

Widespread Insurrection in San Domingo.

NEW YORK, August 1.—Information discloses the fact that for some days past agents of the insurgent leaders in San Domingo have been in the city purchasing arms, and a recent shipment of one thousand stand has been made to a point within control of the revolutionists.

The opposition to Baez is said to be daily growing stronger through the opposition of the Dominicans to the Samana Bay Company, which it is alleged has failed to fulfill any of its promises for the improvement of the territory conceded, and it is only occupied in stripping the country of its valuable products, exporting them without making return in form or erecting new buildings, locating improvements, or engaging in other works designed to aid and advance material progress in the country.

In the battle of the 18th of June at Carosa, according to private advices, the troops of Baez left one hundred dead upon the field, and since the battle desertions from his army have been frequent.

From San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, August 1.—The Democrats last night nominated Captain Hewitt, Harbor Master; T. P. Ryan, District Attorney; T. Farris, Harbor Commissioner; W. P. Daingerfield, Judge of the Nineteenth District Court; E. B. Drake, Police Judge; James Denman, Superintendent of Schools.

The Liberal Reformers nominated G. E. Schloss and W. E. Ford, Fire Commissioners; W. P. Humphreys, Surveyor; W. C. Burnett, City and County Attorney; T. H. Barker, Harbor Master; Golden, Public Administrator.

The Tax Payers did not meet. They will meet to-night. A caucus of that body decided to reconsider the nomination of Crowley for Chief of Police.

Geo. S. Ladd, Assistant General Superintendent of the Western Union Telegraph Company, Pacific Division, resigned to-day. Frank Jaynes has been appointed to fill the vacancy.

C. S. Stylaus, who was arrested last night charged with an infamous crime, says he can establish his innocence. He says the whole matter is the result of a conspiracy between A. J. Von Alm and Dr. Bruck, who are offended at him because they were black balled in a Masonic lodge.

The Tax Payers will probably complete a ticket to-night.

The Board of Supervisors held a meeting and resolved to extend the hospitality of the city to the Philadelphia party now on their way here.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 1.—It was the Liberal Reformers, not the Taxpayers Convention, who proposed to reconsider the nomination of P. Crowley, Chief of Police.

The matter of the Los Animos land patent held by the Sheriff in the office of the U. S. Surveyor, and which Sheriff Adams proposed to take by force from the safe, came before the Twelfth District Court to-day. The Government was represented by counsel, who said he had not had time to examine the law on that subject. Therefore, the case was postponed till Monday. The Sheriff will hold possession of the safe containing the patents.

The Colorado sailed for China and Japan to-day.

The mining share market continues weak and inactive. Sales were small at the morning board, and there has been a further decline of the principal stocks on the list.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 1.—Mrs. Swift, who recently boxed Tyler Curtis' ears because he did not marry her daughter, proposes to test her right to practice in the Police Court with other shysters.

J. T. Ballou, who shot Sanford Spooner, has been held to answer for assault with intent to kill.

GRANT AND BACK PAY.

[illegible] FOR THE PRESIDENT.

A Washington correspondent of The Boston Advertiser makes the following defense of the President:

The part borne by the president in relation to the so called salary grab appears to be the subject of persistent misrepresentation in some quarters by those who suppose it taken with the facts. It is [illegible] in authentic sources that the question of increasing the executive salary was one that came early and often before President Grant in various shapes and through different channels, and that his treatment of it was simple and uniform. It was first presented to him in tangible form during the session of congress next succeeding his inauguration by various senators and representatives visiting the executive mansion on the business of congress or their constituents. The object of most of the inquiries addressed to him was understood to be whether he had any personal feeling on the subject, either for or against an increase of salary for the president of the United States. His invariable reply was that the subject was one on which the president could not with propriety have any opinion of his own as distinct from the popular branch of congress, except in the probable contingency that such an increase should be named as would be inconsistent with the revenue of the government or with the comparative simplicity intended by the founders of the government to surround the person of their chief executive officer.

The affixing of what was then so large a salary as $25,000 to the office of president by the men in congress who had previously been the virtual framers of the constitution satisfied President Grant that the intent was to measure the compensation by the amount of ceremonious dignity which congress judged to be necessary to the usefulness of the office, and that for his part while he should be perfectly willing to serve out his term at the old rate he could not consent to compromise what he considered a sound principle of non interference or to place in a false or embarrassing position those of his successors who might have to consider the same question by opposing either before or after the fact any measure for the reasonable increase of the presidential salary. At no time during the pendency of the question was the amount suggested as the new rate of [illegible] less than fifty or more than one hundred thousand dollars per annum.

Though he did not regard the higher figure as unreasonable the president did on several occasions take an informal departure from his own stand point to the extent of expressing a preference for the lower named sum. This, however, did no violence to his leading views that the president in office should not be forward in the discussion of such a question and should not so act as to subject any president coming after him to unfair comparisons, but leave him or her as free from embarrassing precedents as President Grant found himself. It is quite possible that some of the senators and representatives who engaged themselves in informal discussions of the subject at the executive mansion, without invitation, were actuated by interested motives, but none such were ever treated with greater consideration in consequence of their course, and the president never directly or indirectly attempted to influence the action of any member of either house of congress upon the question. None of his visits to the capitol during the latter days of the session were for the purpose of helping the passage of the salary bill, and his only attempt at legislation were directed toward such important public measures as the bills to carry into execution the provisions of the treaty of Washington, and to effect a satisfactory pacification of Louisiana, in the latter of which he was unfortunately not successful.

In reference to the back pay and increase of pay voted to themselves by the house of congress the president's views are alleged to be that if a veto had been possible without compromising important public interests contained in the same bill, the precedent established by such a course of procedure as a veto would have been a serious blow to the independence of congress and more destroying of the constitution than a compulsory and passive assent to the principle of "back pay." However commendable the president may have deemed Speaker Blaine's action, no occasion was offered him for following the precedent in his own case. The president is represented as holding the view that as members of congress are of necessity to be intrusted with the delicate subject of regulating their own compensation, the constituencies who pay the salaries ought to bear the fact in mind when nominations for congress are in order.

MASQUERADING IN BOY'S CLOTHES.—A dispatch dated Little Rock (Ark.), July 10th, says: A Marshal of Texas [illegible] in this State has just returned from Allensville, Missouri, having in his custody a young girl named Millie Sherwood, who for intervals during the past two years has been passing for a boy under the name of Bill Henderson. About two years ago her parents, residing in Cape Girardeau, Mo., died. She was then thirteen years old, and her two brothers placed her out to work in a hotel in Allensville. Becoming tired of this employment she donned boys' clothing, called herself Bill Henderson, and applied for and received a situation as [illegible] [illegible] in Allensville. For one year unsuspected she fulfilled the functions of this post. Her sex was [illegible] suspected and at Allensville she was placed under arrest and was compelled to resume the female garb. After this she tried working in a hotel as maid servant, but soon tiring of this again resumed the trousers and worked as a farm hand. Subsequently [illegible] in this State as a drover's assistant, and thence went to Jacksonport to work in a livery stable. After a while the men and boys about the stable, believing her to be a woman, began to call her names, and as she says, in order to get away from the place, she took certain horses belonging to the stable and made off with them. The Marshal followed her and overtook her with the horses at Allensville and arrested her on a charge of horse stealing. The people there knew her well and were inclined to prevent the officers from arresting her. Pistols were drawn on both sides, but finally the girl went of her own will with the Marshal. She is now in the Jackson [illegible] jail awaiting trial for horse stealing. The girl is a pretty blonde, and during all her vicissitudes her virtue has never been questioned.

HENRY CLAY.

[illegible] for [illegible] of Mississippi in the Washington Chronicle.

Before the monument [illegible] the [illegible] of the [illegible] had crowned the efforts of Mr. Clay and his Union friends, on a very warm day in mid summer, a very large party of Congressional gentlemen was convened at the hospitable mansion of Mr. Sullivan of this city, a man universally beloved and esteemed, for the purpose of enjoying a dinner good enough indeed to be set before princes and nobles. Mr. Clay was one of the invited guests, as was also Mr. Ritchie. They sat upon opposite sides of the table. Mr. Clay was in his happiest conversational mood and poured forth many a choice anecdote concerning the scenes of public life through which he had passed. It was but natural that all present should wish to hear him say something touching the compromise struggle then going on, and the chances of accomplishing the object which all of us had so much at heart, and an effort therefore was made to call him out thereupon. He talked upon this subject for some time with even more than his accustomed eloquence, when suddenly his mercurial and impulsive friend of Auld Lang Syne rose from his seat and exclaimed: "Look here, Mr. Clay, if you will really save the Union we will all forgive you for having had Adams elected in 1825 by bargain, intrigue and management." "Shut your mouth," exclaimed Mr. Clay, in response, "shut your mouth, Tom Ritchie, you know perfectly well that there never was a word of truth in that charge." "Very well, very well," smilingly responded Mr. Ritchie. "I say to you now, in hearing of this goodly company, that if you succeed in rescuing the Republic from ruin, and I should survive you, Tom Ritchie will plant a sprig of laurel upon your grave."

I should not omit to mention here, that Mr. Clay, a few minutes after this pleasant badinage between himself and Mr. Ritchie, in a very solemn and formal manner addressed the company at the table substantially as follows: "Gentlemen, I feel it to be due to such an occasion as the present one to make a frank confession. Though I have never doubted the propriety of my own conduct in voting for Mr. Adams myself in 1825 and advising my friends to vote for him, yet were I to live this part of my public life over again I should not deem it judicious to accept at his hands the secretaryship of State. By doing so I injured both him and myself. I placed myself in a false position before the country, and often have I painfully felt that I had seriously impaired my own capacity for public usefulness."

* * * * * *

It was during this same eventful summer that my friend and early schoolmate, Senator Pratt of Maryland, invited Mr. Clay and several other gentlemen to visit him at Annapolis and spend a day or two with him and his charming family at their hospitable mansion. Not one of those who had been thus summoned refused the proffered honor, and I well remember the delightful scenes through which we then passed, and in which Mr. Clay talked more freely than I ever knew him to do, displaying colloquial powers such as to me were, I confess, alike surprising and captivating. One morning he was invited to visit the Capitol at Annapolis, where the old Congress were sitting at the time that General Washington surrendered his sword to that body and returned to private life. The invitation was of course accepted, and he set off on foot for that venerable hall, accompanied by his friends, including, as I recollect, Mr. Dickinson, of New York, Mr. Dawson, of Georgia, and others. When we reached our place of destination, we found ourselves quickly surrounded by a considerable concourse of citizens. Mr. Clay, on getting within that room where the Revolutionary Congress held its immortal deliberations, asked that some one would point out to him the precise spot where Washington stood when the scene just referred to had its progress. When this was done he walked to it, and gazing toward the chair of the presiding officer of that body he raised his right hand, obviously in imitation of the Father of his country when giving this last and crowning proof of his fidelity to the cause of which he had been so many years the honored champion and defender. Mr. Clay was evidently conscious of a peculiar inspiration at that interesting moment. His face was radiant with pure and lofty emotion. His eyes blazed with excitement. His noble form seemed absolutely to swell beyond its natural dimensions. The crowd was overwhelmingly impressed and vociferously exclaimed: "A speech! a speech!" Thus called upon, Mr. Clay proceeded to address those assembled for a few moments and in his most happy manner. He rapidly reviewed the existing condition of the country, pointed out the evils of sectional jealousy and extreme party prejudice, spoke of the value of the Constitution and the Union, referred to the noble example of Washington and his compeers of the Revolutionary era, and concluded in these words: "However others may act, I am firmly resolved henceforward to hold no political fellowship with any man or set of men who do not love their country more than party, and who are not willing to make any sacrifice and incur any hazard for the maintenance of the Union of these States and the institutions of freedom established by our forefathers."

I have only to add that had there been one such man in the Congress of the United States as Henry Clay in 1860-61 there would, I feel sure, have been no civil war. Had Mr. Clay [illegible] been then living, the same high-toned patriotism [illegible] statesmanship which had been so efficiently instrumental in 1820, in 1832 and in 1850 in preserving the Republic from the horrors of civil butchery, and from the yet greater evils sure to result from disunion whenever that shall be effected, would have been seen to achieve a still grander triumph of principle over the unbridled [illegible] of that period, from whose [illegible] [illegible] evils have been seen [illegible].

REMARKABLE TENACITY TO LIFE.—William Moyer, the man who on the 23d of June was [illegible] through his body with a scythe by an insane man near Lancaster, is still alive, and the indications are that he will recover unless [illegible]. The Lancaster [illegible] thus describes the wound: The scythe entered the right side about two inches above the hip, and extended transversely through the body in an upward direction until the point appeared on the left side below the arm pit. The wound at the entrance was five and a half inches in length, and at the terminus one and a half inches long. Moyer proceeded a short distance with the scythe extending through his body, and then pulled it out, reeking with blood, unaided. The lobe of the right lung was severed, and it was not expected that he could live more than a few hours. In the [illegible] of all, his condition is now favorable to his recovery, and his attending physician, Dr. [illegible] Rankin, [illegible] expressed the hope of being able to save his life. Moyer has been conscious since the occurrence, speaks distinctly, and eats and sleeps with difficulty. He is a [illegible] [illegible] years of age, and is of rather delicate appearance.

Allen S. Swan, who was timekeeper at the [illegible] at the college regatta at Springfield, publishes a card in which he says that for his own satisfaction he took an object on the opposite shore to draw an imaginary line directly across the river so as to know which crew won on what he considered the merits, and as they passed this line the bow of the Harvard's boat was up to the waist [illegible] of Yale, so that without regard to the oblique line Yale would have won anyway.

The New York Herald of July 27th says: Monsignor Kirtaphy, one of the [illegible] of the Pope's domestic household, is now in this city. Kirtaphy has been traveling along for fifteen months in the United States examining into the condition of the Catholic Church in various States. He denies, or rather he refuses to deny, that he is in America on an official mission, but it is certain that in the not distant future we shall all hear of his report to Rome, and his impressions of Catholic as well as Protestant institutions in America.

A Memphis dispatch of the 27th July gives the following account which the police of that city are working up into mystery: A mysterious murder was committed at 190 Monroe street this morning, the victim being Frank Moore, a well known citizen. About 3 o'clock his wife was awakened by a noise resembling that of persons struggling, and she called to her husband, "What is the matter?" He replied, "Some one [illegible] a cap at me," and a moment afterwards he fell heavily to the floor. She alarmed the neighbors, who came in and found him lying insensible on the floor with a wound in the head. He never spoke again, but lingered until 5 o'clock, when he expired. A window down stairs was raised, and the wardrobe door in the bedroom was open, which Mrs. Moore states was shut when they retired. The general impression is that the murder was committed by a burglar who had been discovered in the room by Moore, but still neither his wife nor the young man sleeping down stairs heard any report of a pistol.

By the European files just received the King of Italy is represented as having held the following language to the French Minister on the occasion of his departure for Rome: "M. Fournier, you may give them all assurance that my ministry will be conservative. I want no other, and tell your Government that I desire to be on good terms with it. I have no taste for a Prussian alliance, and there exists no treaty between the Emperor and me. Only call the attention of your Government to the doings of the clerical party in France. These doings are a continuous provocation. The cry of Sauvez Rome et la France is a cry of war against Italian unity. If Marshal MacMahon's Government does not succeed in calming this agitation, which is communicating itself to the whole of clerical Europe, he will oblige me to cast myself entirely into the arms of Germany, and I shall do it. At present I represent peace between France and Germany. Do not forget this. Let war be declared and it will be sufficient for me to place an army corps on your frontiers in order to paralyze the great part of the forces of France and cause her an invasion and loss of provinces and indemnities more terrible than the war of 1870."

The Linn county Farmers Union warehouse at Shedd will be in good order for the reception of grain at the opening of the harvest season. It has been furnished with a steam engine to drive elevators, and the facilities for receiving, handling and storing grain are not excelled anywhere in Oregon.

A question now agitating the learned minds of Salem is whether the imitation of the Goddess of Justice, on their new Court House, holds the scales in the proper hand. "If the scales are in the right hand then are they in the wrong hand," and if they are in the left hand how can they be in the right hand?"

A gentleman living on the edge of Howell's Prairie, Marion county, by the name of Macy, awoke on Tuesday morning and found one of his best horses gone. He took the trail of the animal, and after going a short distance met his horse with a saddle and bridle on. It is supposed that Russell, the escaped convict, might explain how this came about.

The Albany Register has this: We learn that the Rev. Mr. Butcher, who has been pastor of the Congregational Church of Albany for years past, intends going to the Dalles to fill the pulpit of the State Geologist, Rev. Mr. Condon, who takes charge of the College at Forest Grove. His departure from among us will be lamented by many warm personal friends.

By private letter from Corvallis, the Enterprise learns that Wm. H. Chapman, a young law student of Corvallis, was drowned in the Willamette at that place last Sunday. His parents formerly resided in Oregon City, where the deceased was born in 1851. He has relatives living in Oregon City at present, and his parents reside in Josephine county. The body was recovered.

Bro. Brown of the Democrat writes up the tallest oats yet. He says: "Linn county is still ahead in the line of tall oats. C. P. Burkhart, Esq., living about four miles from this city, has [illegible] [illegible] acres that will average eight feet and a half. We also learn that Mr. Hensley, at Lower Soda, raised some oats this year that attained the enormous height of nine feet and one inch."

Mr. B. Roop, of Salem, has in his collection of curiosities a pair of small jaws which he fails to recognize [illegible] [illegible] of the Salem naturalists who study such things classify them. They seem to be a perfect set of jaws, rather small and not of ordinary shape. Mr. Roop would be glad if some naturalist would examine his jaws and tell him of them—where they belong, what class, etc.

An accident of some dimensions occurred at Big Prairie, Lane county, on Wednesday last to the Bennet Bros., who were driving sheep. In descending a hill something gave way about the wagon, causing the horses to run away, throwing the occupants out and severely injuring James Bennett and also Mrs. Brown. One of the horses was badly crippled and portions of the wagon entirely demolished.

The Democrat says: The wool market in Albany has been steady all this season, 22½ cents being the common price until Thursday of last week, when it suddenly went up to 24. During the prevalence of this price it was brought into Albany in immense quantities, one man alone buying between 40,000 and 50,000 pounds. Last Saturday the market fell again, and at the present time the ruling price is 23 cents.

The Albany Democrat learns from a person just down from Sodaville that quite an accident happened at that place last Sabbath. Several people were sitting around the springs, when the seat, becoming loosened, gave way, precipitating the occupants to the ground in rather an unceremonious manner. One little boy, about eight years of age, whose name our informant could not give, had one of his legs broken in two places by the fall.

The Oregon City Enterprise says: "Considerable excitement was created in town last Saturday afternoon on the discovery of gold in the sluice boxes used to run off the dirt from the excavation for Messrs. Pope & Co.'s building. But it soon cooled off when the fact was made known that at an early date the very lot on which the building is being erected was at one time used for the coinage of what was known as the 'Beaver Money.' It is supposed the gold discovered was lost at that time. And thus the visions of a rich strike passed from the gaze of many of our citizens."

SATURDAY MORNING AUGUST 2, 1873

A BULWARK ATTACKED

The bill lately introduced into the Parliament of England to create a legal tribunal of final resort strikes at the very foundation of one of the ancient institutions of the realm. It has been the immemorial custom for the House of Lords to hear and finally determine appeals from the highest judicial Courts of England, Scotland and Ireland. From the time the Lords have had a place as a distinct branch of the government this has been one of their functions. So deeply was this usage rooted in the minds of the English people, that when our American States were formed by the descendants of English people some of them imitated it as far as practicable by vesting in the higher branch of the Legislature the authority to hear and determine appeals from the legal tribunals. This continued in vogue in New York down to a recent date, the creation of the Court of Appeals about the year 18[illegible] being the earliest departure from the old custom. Prior to that time the State Senate heard appeals from the Supreme Court.

That the determination of questions of a strictly legal nature, by a body of men so ill-adapted to that duty as a body of men chosen as legislators are chosen, is liable to many and serious objection, need not be argued. To the American mind it seems there could be no argument on the other side, and this is pretty nearly true, as applied to the American system of government. But in England the upper house of the Legislature is not constituted as in the American States. The Lords are an aristocratic body into which no plebeian can enter through a popular vote or otherwise. The appeal to the House of Lords, therefore, gave the nobility the final voice in the disposition of all questions, no matter what class was concerned in the litigation. It was one of the distinctive privileges of the aristocracy, and gave them power over the lives and fortunes of the lower classes, as well as the power to construe the laws of the realm to suit their own ideas and intents. Thus the attack upon this institution is of much greater significance than it would be were the English the same as the American form of government. The agitation having once commenced, it is not likely to stop till the proposed reformation is accomplished, and the judicial system of England put upon a more rational basis.

The New York Herald has an article headed "The Miseries of Street Car Travel," in which the editor of that journal dwells at length as well as fervently upon the inconvenience and discomfort of riding in the street cars of a hot, dusty day. It may be very inconvenient in New York, but it is just the reverse here. Let any man walk up First street during the hot days we are having just now, and then ask him what he thinks of the street car as an institution of summer travel. If you fail by such means to prove that the editor of the Herald is a Democrat and bought with British gold, we engage to [illegible] to car tickets straight.

We would like to see the New York Herald lavish some of its remarkable inquisitiveness in [illegible] the correct spelling of Mr Shah's name. We think we can detect a new orthography in every other issue of that sheet. One day we have Nas-ed-deen, the next day we read Nas-[illegible], the next, Nasr-ed-din. This latter spelling prevails in the issue of July 23d, but we are told, under "Personal Intelligence," that "the Shah's name is properly written N[illegible] Chah Kadjah." The Tribune, we believe, sticks to one spelling, Noureddin. The World has it, Nasr-ed-di[illegible]. The other New York journals ad libitum—which is probably the correct spelling. The Herald might squander some of its immense resources to excellent advantage in sending forth some Stanley to get the heathen's autograph. But in the present perturbed state of things we fall back on the glittering generality—Mr Shah, of Persia, and console ourselves that perhaps after all the untutored barbarian has changed his name since he left his native land.

So far, the Republicans of California have genuine cause of rejoicing in their success over the rings. In almost every county of interior California the primaries and County Conventions have been carried against the railroad cliques. The issue of monopoly and anti-monopoly was squarely before the people and they seem to have appreciated its momentous importance. In San Francisco Stanford and Carr will triumph, in all probability. But as we have said, in the farming communities and smaller towns there is a general uprising against corporational rule. The election of a Senator to succeed Casserly is the prize for which the people are struggling. The omens are favorable and we shall expect to see a sound anti-monopoly Republican returned to the United States Senate from California next fall.

Observe the list of stars offered by the American Literary Bureau of Cooper Institute for the coming lecture season: Bret Harte, Kate Field, Wendell Phillips, Wilkie Collins, Prof R A Proctor, Mrs Harriet Beecher Stowe, Rev E H Chapin, Gerald Massey, Rev T D Talmadge, M Du Chaillu, Mrs Scott Siddons, Rev Newman Hall, Murdoch, Saxe, J T Fields, Elihu Burritt, Miss Edgarton, Senator Schurz, John Brougham, Charles Bradlaugh the noted English radical editor, and a score of lesser lights. Bradlaugh will lecture on The Downfall of the House of Brunswick. John Brougham will give original reading. Du Chaillu will read his thrilling diary of adventure, and the others will scatter themselves among the remaining history and science.

Elizur Wright evolves a new principle in the law of libel from the [illegible]. He wants the law so construed that a plaintiff who is charged with public office or trust shall have a right of action against an editor for libel except on an affidavit that the defendant has refused either to retract publicly or to admit a [illegible] the alleged libelous matter [illegible] reasonable length. Mr Wright thinks that if the law of libel is to be interpreted more stringently than this against any editor, the freedom of the press in America [illegible] but upon the sheer [illegible] the editors.

The Supreme Court of [illegible] ly made a decision which [illegible] vexed question of the [illegible] November election in that State. It is to the effect that all acts of officers holding commissions by virtue of warrants issued from the State Department since last election upon returns made by either of the Returning Boards are absolutely null and void.

MINISTER DELONG'S RECALL

The San Francisco [illegible] publishes a letter from James H. [illegible] to ex-Senator Latham bearing on the recall of our Minister to Japan. The writer says that he feels bound by a sense of justice to Mr DeLong to say that he has conversed with the leading bankers and business men of Yokohama, Kobe and Nagasaki, and without exception they regret the recall of Mr DeLong as a great mistake on the part of our Government and a great disappointment to themselves. Nor is this disappointment confined to the Caucasians. The high esteem in which our Minister was held by the native citizens was plainly shown in the letter of regret which the Mikado caused to be written to our Government, testifying in the highest terms the regard His Majesty had for Mr DeLong. There was a charge that DeLong was connected with a conspiracy of rebellion against the Mikado. It was first published in the Tribune, which journal has been in fact the only one that professed to have knowledge of any delinquency on the part of our Minister. Of this and kindred allegations Mr Latham says:

> The charges made by the correspondent of the Tribune are most maliciously false and absurd, and as your correspondent shows, the invention of an enemy. No one in Japan could be found to believe them, and even the English papers received by the last steamer from Yokohama denounce them as groundless and prove their falsity and malice. Again, cases of large interest involving large sums, and of important commercial [illegible] had come before the American Minister for adjudication, and all Mr DeLong's decisions had been so marked by knowledge of law and equity that they felt their interests were safe in his hands. The opinions were freely expressed by Americans and Englishmen, and I do not believe there are to-day in Japan half a dozen respectable individuals who do not fully commend DeLong's official course.

This is not the first testimonial of merit that our worthy Minister has received. The logic of events endorses him quite as strongly as the letter of Mr Latham. The tide of improvement is flowing swiftly and with cumulative strength from the centers of civilization into that land which but a few years since—even at the date of Mr DeLong's appointment—was quite as exclusive as its neighbor, China. Religious toleration was at the time unknown. Commerce with the outside world was restricted. The Tycoon ruled with a rod of iron his unresisting spiritless subjects. The rudest implements of agriculture made the toil of the lower classes doubly burdensome. These things have changed, and for the long train of benefits that have resulted from the new order of things Japan and the outside world are largely indebted to the tireless energy of Minister DeLong. We have had occasion within the present week to refer briefly to the advance of civilizing influences in Japan. We need not rehearse them now. They are known of all men. Our Commissioners of Finance, of Agriculture and of Education, have been called thither by the Mikado. The foreigner is no longer molested in the enjoyment of his religion and the observance of national customs. Our arts and our manners have been transplanted, and have already achieved a healthy growth. The influence of America is unrivaled. A prosperous and steadily increasing commerce has opened to American merchants. Scores of Japanese youth have been entrusted to our care. What has occasioned this strange reversal of the ancient social machinery of Japan? Who has inspired the wary Mikado with this sudden confidence in the people of the United States? We are glad to believe that Minister DeLong has been the chief instrument in this reform. His successor has been appointed, and we are pleased to hope that he may carry forward the work his predecessor has so nobly commenced. We are impressed with the belief that the Tribune has been grossly misinformed, and that the Department of State has been imposed upon. At any rate, Minister DeLong's valuable services should be gratefully recognized. He has been a faithful public servant and that means much in these times.

Don Carlos seems to be prosecuting his war against the republic on the old Jesuitical maxim that the end justifies the means. Since he crossed the frontiers of Spain his advance has been marked by unusual cruelty to prisoners of war, if we may trust correspondents and cablegrams. A correspondent at Madrid writes that the republican troops at [illegible] surrendered to the Carlists on condition that their lives should be spared. In violation of these terms the Carlists shot a number of them after they had delivered up their arms. This ferocity is bound to work out its unerring results; every civilized people will abhor a cause which has to resort to unjustifiable cruelty to sustain itself.

The Cincinnati Commercial appears to be just a little peevish at the manifest disinclination of Democracy to [illegible] out of existence to the lively strains of the new "Rogues' March"—the Allen county resolutions. It [illegible] admonishes Bourbonism of its utter uselessness and adjures it to obtain its own consent to get out of the way, that the Liberals may sweep the State. Furthermore the Commercial [illegible] in the world [illegible] unresisting [illegible] death struggles. How sharper than a serpent's tooth, etc.

CITY.

Oswego Iron Works.—Among [illegible] proposed to save our State from the [illegible] recurrence of a pressing and oppressive stringency in financial matters none have ever been advocated with the same confidence as the diversification of our industries and the development of the splendid resources which all admit that Oregon possesses. The great advantages of our State for manufacturing purposes have not been improved, and hence with the means of boundless wealth all around us we have struggled through comparative poverty, allowing other communities to outgrow and overreach us. We have always had confidence however that in the long run our State would come out of swaddling clothes and begin a growth that would be permanent and at last bring her up to a place among the proper [illegible] and wealthy States of the Union. We are led to make these remarks by [illegible] of the fact that the vast iron [illegible] at the borders of our city almost are again to become the scene of active operations, and the sound of the blast and pick are to be heard and the blaze of the furnace seen as the earth gives up the useful mineral that has lain concealed in her bosom for ages. A company has been organized, the transfers made, and they now have full control of the above named mines. This company have determined to commence operations as soon as the necessary stock of coal and ore can be placed at the works. The contracts are being negotiated for this coal and ore, and workmen will probably be put upon them in the course of a few days. Every good friend of Oregon will wish success to this enterprise.

Lively Boating.—Great activity is expected in the boating business this fall on the upper Wallamet. Commencing immediately after harvest the Willamette River Transportation Company propose to put on three boats which will ascend as high as the stage of the water and the draught of the steamers will allow. It has been found necessary to do this in order to meet the requirements of trade. Immense quantities of wheat will begin to roll in from all points of the valley, a few weeks after the farmers have got through with their threshing. To accommodate this great rush, the company will be compelled to employ all their available boats. By the middle of September the new steamer, now in process of construction, will be finished and ready for service. With what boats the company already have, the new one will make the fourth, there being now the Gov Grover, Shoshone and Vancouver. The intention is to dispatch a boat from Portland every morning when the trade will justify, which is expected to be the case in a month or so. The steamer Vancouver is to be placed on the Dayton-Portland route, and will run up the Yamhill river as far as that stream is navigable. The three remaining boats will run on the Wallamet as far as Harrisburg and return. In anticipation of the rush of grain and general freight, the company are making vigorous efforts to put all their boats in the best possible running condition.

Pest House Completed.—One week from last Wednesday, the Chief of Police was authorized by the Common Council to proceed at once and erect a Pest House on a piece of land selected for that purpose, north of the city and about three miles distant. In compliance with [illegible], Chief Lappeus commenced work at [illegible] penters [illegible] work without delay. So rapidly has the work been prosecuted that the building is completed and furnished in a very comfortable manner. Bedding in abundance has been provided and plenty of good wholesome food. Water, pure and cold, such a necessary article in the management and care of this loathsome disorder, is brought into the house from a fine spring through a lead pipe. Three careful, experienced nurses have been engaged to attend on those who may be stricken down. Dr I. A. Davenport is to be the attending physician. In the general arrangement of the building, and the furnishing and providing accommodations, nothing has been omitted which can minister to the comfort of those afflicted with this scourge.

The First Quail.—Yesterday the prohibition imposed by the Game law in regard to the destruction of quails, pheasants, grouse etc, expired by limitation. Fearful and indiscriminate slaughter of the feathered tribes may be anticipated from now until the law goes into periodical effect. The long restraint imposed by the law has put a keener edge on the sanguinary inclinations of sportsmen and an increased destruction of winged game can be anticipated until the desire has been gratified. The credit of having killed the first quail this season since the prohibition of the Game law expired we think justly belongs to R E Bybee and J C Work, two legal scions of this city. Taking time by the forelock these gentlemen arose yesterday morning long ere the sun had tipped the eastern declivity of the Cascades and started out in the woods. They soon started a covey of quails and succeeded in bagging a number before sun up. At this season of the year the birds are in splendid condition and calculated to tickle the most fastidious palate.

Machinist Arrived.—A gentleman arrived on the last steamer from North Andover, Massachusetts who is a very experienced machinist. This gentleman was sent for to superintend the putting up of some of the most difficult and intricate portions of the machinery connected with the Oregon City Woolen Mills. The person who was selected at first by the company to put up the machinery proved too inexperienced to superintend the difficult work. It became necessary to send for another machinist which was done. A telegram was dispatched with instructions to send immediately a competent person. A machinist was selected and sent out [illegible] with instructions. He reached here [illegible] and did not delay the work more than two weeks. Work was resumed yesterday and is to be prosecuted until the mills are in full blast which will be in the course of three weeks at the farthest.

For San Francisco.—The steamer Ajax sailed last evening at 6 o'clock from this port for San Francisco carrying hence the following passengers: F A Hawley, Jacob Mayer, Mrs J D Cook, Mrs M Thompson, Mrs Andrew Kidd, Mrs J H Lyons, H C Thompson, A A Staley, T W Evans, L M Boggess, L Reed wife and three children, Miss Mary Rodney and sister, Miss Molly Kingsley, Fo Teal Jr, H F Williams, Miss Lizzie Geary, Mrs Geo F Craw and child, L C Smith, J Rogers, F A Field, I S Miller, D S Garwood, P Hyde, E Chulosch, Mrs Bridget Stern and child, I H Taylor, Prof Herr, Miss Vidal, R [illegible] Harris, Mrs Dillon, Michael O'Gara, Wm Johnson, Robert M Lowd, August Mill—W F & Co's messenger and twenty five in the steerage.

Skeleton Map.—Mr R. A. Habersham received a letter a few days ago from the house of Stedman, Brown & Lyons of New York. This firm is engaged at present in compiling a large atlas of the world which is to be known as Gray's Atlas. By some means the firm learned that Mr Habersham was engaged in the compilation of a large map of Oregon. They wrote to him requesting that he should prepare a skeleton map of this State on a small scale, taken from his large map, which would be inserted in the new atlas. As yet Mr H has not decided what action he will take in the matter. His large map is now fast approaching completion, and [illegible] forward to New York [illegible] few weeks.

Book will Close.—[illegible] Assessor will close his books [illegible] o'clock. Statements [illegible] that hour to [illegible] for the Board of Equalization [illegible] meet the present month. [illegible] owner fails or refuses [illegible] sworn statement of [illegible] time specified by law [illegible] books the matter goes before the Equalization who are empowered [illegible] property. Yesterday there was [illegible] taxpayers to the Assessor [illegible] would be pleased to have [illegible] has thus far failed to call [illegible] sworn statement to-day before [illegible]

Having placed his present order and added a variety [illegible] dorffer will be pleased [illegible] day at his new store 11[illegible] doors north of Morrison.

Mr Wm B Clark.—This well known [illegible] who has recently returned from an extended [illegible] voyage around the world will lecture this evening at the Court House. His lecture will begin at 8 o'clock. Mr Clark is a fluent speaker and will not [illegible] but instruct [illegible] audience [illegible]. In the [illegible] of his [illegible] many things [illegible]. Palestine and Egypt will [illegible] form the subject of Mr Clark's lecture this evening. He will lecture to-morrow evening in one of the city churches on the subject of The Holy Land.

Gone to Stockton.—Mr A. Miller left on the steamer last night for San Francisco, from which place he will proceed to Stockton where the Convention of the delegates from the various Turn Verein societies will convene on the 7th, 8th and 9th of the present month. Mr Miller will represent the Portland Turn Verein in the Convention. Some twenty members of the society gathered on the wharf to wish him a safe and pleasant trip, and we have no doubt of the latter as he can take care of himself anywhere. He hopes to bring back a prize and we wish him success in all that he does at the Convention.

Crazy.—A San Francisco paper of a late date has the following: Robert Butler, a hotel keeper who came to this city fourteen years ago from Portland, Oregon, and has indulged in strong drink until his head is full of strange fancies, imagines his enemies blow sulphurous odors in his face; that they poison mosquitoes, flies and other insects and place them in his ears, whence they find their way into his stomach and hold concert. He also fancies he can hear those insects hold anti-Chinese meetings in his stomach. He is a married man with a family of four children. He was first attacked about a year ago.

Tied up for Repairs.—The steamer Gov Grover was tied up yesterday at the O S N Co's wharf for repairs. This boat has seen pretty rough service since she commenced running and has done an immense amount of good work for the company. A spark-catcher will be attached to the stack, the hull will be recaulked and the cabin repainted. It will require about three weeks to make these repairs. During that time no boat will be run on the upper river by the company.

Plaza Music.—We are gratified to state that the Portland Brass Band will furnish the public free music this evening at the Plaza, commencing at 7:30 o'clock. The following is the programme:

1. Prussian Chevalier March—Gungel
2. Concordia Waltz—Faust
3. Polka—Kiesler
4. Cavatina Eleure d'Amore—Donizetti
5. Then you'll remember me—Balfe
6. Wine Galop—[illegible]

Off for Mount Hood.—Early on Monday morning Charles Holder, Frank Hicks, Edward Tracy, Henry Corbett, Edward Robinson and Charles M[illegible] will proceed eastward to Mount Hood, the latter taking the route. They will have all the necessaries calculated to afford comfort and hope to be able to reach the highest point on the great mountain on Thursday morning at 11 o'clock. They will signal to friends here so be on the look out.

Mission Chapel.—Right Rev Bishop Morris having returned from his visitation of the churches on the Sound will open the Mission Chapel to-morrow evening at 7:30 o'clock, to which the friends of church extension and of the propagation of the gospel are cordially invited. [illegible] ner of First and Caruthers streets at the southern terminus of the street railway, and hence will be easily accessible for all.

For the Sound.—The steamer Gussie Telfair departed for the Sound on Thursday evening, carrying hence a full freight. She will be absent but a few days and will return in time to sail for Sitka and intermediate points on Saturday next. The [illegible] will take the place of the California now due here on the Portland Sitka route.

More Tile.—One hundred and sixty feet of tile sewerage arrived from Buena Vista on the steamer Gov Grover, for Stark street. Excavation will be resumed at once. The terra cotta which last came down will be laid between Third and Fourth streets.

Large Freight.—Notwithstanding the low stage of water in the Upper Wallamet the Grover which arrived here on Thursday evening brought down over 75 tons of freight.

It is a settled fact that you can buy boots and shoes at the opposition store, Oro Fino theater building, cheaper than elsewhere. Go and see.

SEARCH FOR THE GEO. S. WRIGHT.

[illegible] the Geo S Wright [illegible] from this port for Sitka and months have passed since the return of the steamer Gussie Telfair which brought the first authentic intelligence [illegible] of the vessel [illegible]. Nothing definite has ever been ascertained of the manner in which the vessel was lost or the fate of the survivors [illegible]. No doubt can remain in the mind [illegible] but what the vessel was wrecked but the fate of the passengers is shrouded in impenetrable mystery. Did all on board go down instantly in darkness or did any escape in small boats to the land? Among the [illegible] on board [illegible] the perils of the sea [illegible] questions which have long agitated the public and tortured the minds of friends and relatives. But which remain as profound a mystery as when the news of the wreck was first brought. Subsequent discoveries [illegible] reports [illegible] would show clearly that [illegible] all had escaped in the small boats and reached the main land. If the steamer had struck a sunken rock [illegible] went down [illegible] there could have been no [illegible] to procure life preservers [illegible] which have since been discovered had [illegible] preserver an unmistakable evidence that [illegible] the passengers did not perish [illegible]. Of course these mysteries will never be solved to the satisfaction of the public unless something more definite and tangible is disclosed. Since the return of the Gussie Telfair the subject of dispatching a steamer for the special purpose of making diligent and thorough search for survivors if any such could be found—bodies, fragments of the wreck or traces which would tend to settle forever all doubts and painful conjectures—has frequently been agitated by the press. Such agitation has resulted in no action either on the part of the Government or private parties. Apparently a feeling of apathy has been shown in some quarter or else more prompt action would have been taken and more public interest manifested in prosecuting the search. Acting under the impression that the vessel and all on board have met a common fate and that further effort to save life or trace out perplexing conjectures would be useless, a seeming public indifference has settled over the whole affair which as time passes swiftly away increases. Past efforts to elicit interest sufficient to induce the Government to send out a boat having failed, those who had friends and relatives on board have grown disheartened and for more than two months nothing has been heard of the matter. Among those who have been unremitting and indefatigable in an effort to have further and more satisfactory search made, we mention the name of Mrs A B Sutton of this city whose husband was on board the ill fated craft. This lady has made constant and persistent efforts to induce not only the Government but private parties to send out a steamer to search for the wreck. She has not failed to avail of every opportunity whether promising success or not, to press this matter so near her heart into favorable consideration. Notwithstanding discouragement and delay has met her efforts in almost every direction, she is still laboring assiduously to accomplish the desired object. Frequent appeals have been made to the Government but as yet have availed nothing. On the 12th of last April Mrs Sutton forwarded to the Secretary of the Treasury a petition signed by a large number of prominent persons in this State appealing for aid and asking that the Government send out at once a vessel to look for the Wright. The Secretary wrote to the Collector of Customs at Port Townsend discretionary instructions for that officer to dispatch the revenue cutter Lincoln for a cruise along the northern coast to search for the lost steamer. In response to such instructions the Collector wrote to the Secretary that the boilers of the Lincoln were weak and out of repair, that the general condition of the vessel was such that to attempt to cruise along the dangerous coast of the Northwest would be extremely hazardous. Before such a voyage could be undertaken without danger it would be necessary to repair the Lincoln throughout. There were neither proper facilities nor appliances to repair the boiler and hull at that port. Such being the case, the projected voyage was abandoned and Mrs Sutton notified of the conclusion by a letter from the Secretary under date of July 15th. This lady, we learn, has not yet despaired of eliciting the attention of Government to the matter and of yet securing assistance. Letters have recently been addressed to President Grant and Hon George H Williams by prominent and influential citizens of the State. These letters appeal in the strongest terms for a reconsideration of the matter and asking for immediate action. Should such appeals prove unavailing it is quite probable that a vessel will be fitted out by private parties and the long delayed search made. We understand that such a movement is on foot. There appears to be no doubt but what it is the duty of the Government to send at once a vessel. It is a question in which the general safety and interest of the traveling public are concerned.

Below we publish a letter written to the British Colonist of a late date in relation to the Geo S Wright.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 31, 1873.

Editor British Colonist: In the San Francisco papers of July 18th it is stated that the steamer Otter had arrived at Victoria from the North bringing vague rumors of the finding of two (and another account says six) mutilated bodies supposed to be those of persons who were on board the steamer Geo S Wright, and that the press of your city is agitating the subject of sending another vessel to make a thorough search and investigation on the northern coast where the Wright was lost. I for one (having had a brother on the Wright) do sincerely hope that another search may be made. How do we know but that one, two, five or ten of these unfortunate people may have succeeded in reaching the shore alive, either on pieces of the wreck or in the boats? We can hardly hope that any of them are still alive, but can we say positively from the facts hitherto ascertained that no one exists? May not five or three or two or one of them be dragging out a miserable existence of hopeless slavery in the hands of brutal savages, suffering bodily pain and mental agony, praying that God may bring deliverance or death? What [illegible] of the boats of that steamer? If they [illegible] the steamer sunk [illegible] vestige of the boats has been found? If the steamer was so completely wrecked and torn apart [illegible] and a part of her main deck were found [illegible] the boats would certainly have been freed [illegible]

The [illegible] greatest mystery [illegible] with the [illegible] Did some of the people succeed in reaching the shore in the boats at some point not yet known and fall into the hands of Indians who murdered them? Or did they reach the shore [illegible] perish miserably [illegible] bones [illegible]

We have [illegible] none have [illegible] are not [illegible] that all [illegible] drowned [illegible] having [illegible]

On the 26th J D Haggerty, an Australian artist, appeared in an Irish drama of his own composition, entitled The Shingwan. Mrs [illegible] made her reappearance [illegible]

The following very complimentary notice of Madame Anna Bishop appears in a San Francisco paper in relation to a recent performance given by this gifted lady, assisted by Messrs Walker, Gottschalk and Galder: "The singing of this lady is the perfection of art, and in the opening recitative and aria 'Ah! Come Rapida' by Meyerbeer her wonderful and magnificent method elicited great applause. Mr Frank Galder is the best pianist that has ever visited this coast. With the exception of the great Rubenstein (whom we heard in New York last season) we place Mr Galder in the foremost rank as a pianist. He fairly electrified the audience. Mr Alfred Walker has a charming tenor voice and gave with fine effect and feeling 'Come into the Garden Maud.' Mr Gottschalk has a superb Baritone voice and sang the 'Heart Bowed Down' with feeling and expression. The Duet 'Sunset' by Stephen Massett is really a little gem, and was loudly encored. In this exquisite melody the voices of Madame Anna Bishop and Mr Walker blend beautifully and the audience gave unmistakable signs of their approval. The laughing trio sent every one home in a good humor and the feeling of the audience evidently was that the Madame should give another entertainment which we hope she will do. It is the wish of many that Mr Galder would give a Piano Forte Recital and Madame Bishop a Sacred Concert. Crowds will go to hear her sing 'I Know that My Redeemer Liveth.'"

The complimentary testimonial to Mr Henry Edwards last evening at Masonic Hall was a grand success. A more refined and cultivated audience is not often seen gathered on any occasion in this city than were present last evening. The entertainment was chaste and refined in the highest sense and met with a corresponding appreciation from the large audience. Mr Edwards did credit to himself on this occasion. His elocutionary efforts were very fine, and stamp him as an artiste in the truest sense. Possessed of a commanding physique, pleasant but strongly marked features in which the intellectual and handsome are symmetrically blended, his appearance is well calculated to attract and rivet attention. Add to these advantages a round, full and musical voice, cultivated modulation, clear distinct articulation, graceful gestures and an idea can be formed of the powers which Mr Edwards exerts over an audience. In the several recitations given by Mr Edwards he won golden opinions. He was roundly applauded and encored several times. Many of his efforts were possessed of uncommon elocutionary merit. Among these, we make special mention of "Eugene Aram's Dream," "Seven Ages of Man," "The Mourners," "The Palm Tree" and "The Parting of Hafed and Hinda." Mr Thielsen and Dr Hatch were roundly applauded for the superb rendition of a piano duet. Prof Plummer kindly volunteered on the occasion. He came on the stage amidst thundering applause and recited "The Little Hero" as only the Professor is capable of doing. Mesdames DeFrans and Cardinell sang splendidly "The Fisherman," a vocal duet, and won an encore. Miss Cardinell recited "Hood's Bells" in a manner which took the house fairly by storm. The same lady sang the "Banquet Song" with excellent effect and won for herself new laurels and a brilliant encore. The occasion was one which our public will long remember with pleasure. Financially the entertainment was all that the beneficiary could have desired.

[COMMUNICATED.]

During [illegible] the present [illegible] we are naturally inclined to oppose any plan which costs money. The Common Council propose to lay certain sewers and a grand [illegible]. From what appears in the statements to the papers it is plain that the citizens are under an erroneous impression regarding the extent and cost of the proposed work. The plan of the Council is to lay, during the present dry season, the main sewer in Sixth street [illegible] from the corner of [illegible] the foot of [illegible] street from Seventh to the Wallamet. The [illegible] will cost $20,120 [illegible] within [illegible] district. The Clay street sewer will cost [illegible] each block in the Clay street district. To pay for these works, it is proposed to assess equally all blocks within the respective district.

If the city sewers are laid during the present [illegible] the work of sewerage can be [illegible] from time to time as needed. [illegible] for a few weeks nothing [illegible] in the way of sewers [illegible] August 1873 as the outlets of [illegible] which must be built during extreme low water stage must be completed before any portion of the sewer can be used.

The necessity for this work is urgent. Our city [illegible] is becoming sickly from the noxious gas exhaled from the ground which has soaked with the contents of cess pools and defective sewers. The water of many wells is poisoned in the same way. The injury to property and deterioration in its value caused by washes in the streets especially in the southern part of the city amounts to many thousands of dollars, and to repair the streets without providing against a repetition of the evil by furnishing channels and outlets for the rain water would be a useless expense. During the rainy months the streets are kept in an almost impassable condition and sidewalks and other costly improvements are washed away by the sluices of rain water which flow through the streets. These evils will be remedied by laying the proposed sewers and the benefits which will result are acknowledged and desired by all.

With the knowledge of the nature of the proposed improvement which the above explanation affords the citizens can act intelligently in the matter and should they decide to oppose its execution will do so with a full understanding of the fact.

Portland, Aug 1, 1873.

FINALLY DECIDED.

It is an old but true saying that a man is known by the books he reads and the company he keeps. This saying is illustrative of the great sewing machine war in which nearly all the second-class machines have played prominent parts expending much ammunition and making forced marches attended with great loss. But our readers have not seen the name of the world renowned Grover & Baker Sewing Machine flourished before the people in the above connection and this dignified reserve has established the popularity of the Grover & Baker Sewing Machine now and forever. It stands on its respectability and merits. These machines make the Elastic Stitch and Shuttle Stitch and will be sold on installments of $10 per month. W T Shanahan, agent, 71 First street.

Judge Dunlevy, whom gossip assigns Lieut-Colonel Fred Grant as a papa-in-law, was for seventeen years a Judge in Central Ohio and has been very intimate with Robert C Schenck. He is a wealthy man and has recently made a large amount of money in real estate.

Some people may become excited over the terminus of the Northern Pacific Railroad on Puget Sound but it does not disturb Beck & Waldman, corner Front and Washington streets in the least as they intend to pursue the usual course to their customers and that is to sell goods at prices which will enable those with limited means to provide themselves with good clothing at a very small outlay of money. Parents should bring their children to this house for neat-fitting suits.

Why linger in blissful ignorance? Why do you wander about seeking a place where they keep the largest and finest stock of Summer Clothing? Why pay high prices for goods when the fact has been long established that the great firm of J KOHN & Co, 91 Front Street sell Clothing and Gents Furnishing Goods so cheap! They keep the best, they sell the cheapest and what more can be asked!

COLFMAN'S EUCALYPTUS

Dr J S Colman's Compound Extract of Eucalyptus is a preparation combining all the valuable medical qualities of the Eucalyptus which is cultivated in nearly every California garden for its medical utility having become the household remedy for all diseases of the KIDNEYS, BLADDER and URINARY CANAL and SEMINAL WEAKNESS. It seems to have a direct affinity for the GENITO URINARY ORGANS and their surroundings and cures them by its astringent, healing and balsamic properties more effectually than any other known remedy.

It is an invaluable remedy for all diseases of the mucous and serous membranes such as BRONCHITIS, HACKING COUGH, NAUSEA DURING PREGNANCY, DYSPEPSIA, LEUCORRHOEA etc.

This preparation is the result of Dr Colman's experiments with the medicinal properties of the tree in the U S Marine Hospital in San Francisco in 1871 and 1872 where he had unusual facilities for testing the various methods of preparing the remedy and its uses. It can be relied upon as certain to give the promised results and hundreds of testimonials of its efficacy can be seen at his office 406 Kearney street, San Francisco.

COLEMAN'S DOUBLE EXTRACT OF EUCALYPTUS is a powerful yet harmless febrifuge and is a special preparation for the treatment of the malarious fevers of our interior valleys and is warranted to cure any case of FEVER AND AGUE treated with it according to directions while the baneful results of the usual Quinine and arsenical remedies of those diseases are entirely avoided.

SATURDAY MORNING, AUGUST 2, 1873

SIXTY MINUTES COURTSHIP

[illegible] WITH [illegible] BACKWARD [illegible]

A correspondent of [illegible] tells [illegible] Professor Foster [illegible] was well [illegible] in the [illegible] advised by some of his friends to get married [illegible] stated their [illegible] and promised [illegible] [illegible] he was [illegible] to a number [illegible] in the city [illegible] they had no doubt would be willing to [illegible] his hand and make [illegible] happy [illegible]

THE [illegible] KIND HEARTED [illegible] MAN

As void of guile as of offense, and an entire stranger [illegible] in short courtship. He [illegible] see [illegible] in [illegible] woman [illegible] [illegible] always [illegible] known the [illegible] saying in a clear and distinct voice [illegible]

Well, Miss Sarah my friends have advised me to get married, recommended you and a number of other young ladies to me as suitable persons, and I have now called to [illegible] are willing to marry me.

Had an earthquake violently shaken the premises, the household could not have been more astonished.

LIKE A FRIGHTENED [illegible]

Sarah started to run when her mother caught her and said:

Why, child, don't be frightened, the Professor won't hurt you.

Being again seated, a deep blush succeeded the paleness which had been caused by the startling announcement and she rallied enough to be able to say to the Professor that as his proposition had been entirely unexpected, she must have some time to consider the matter. This he granted, but said:

As I am anxious, in case of your refusal, to see the other young ladies to-day, I can wait only one hour for your answer.

Knowing the worthiness, sincerity and simplicity of the Professor, the matron took her blushing daughter up stairs for consultation while the father was left to entertain

HIS PROPOSED SON IN LAW

As best he could under the novel circumstances. Of course the discussion of the sudden [illegible] position between Sarah and her mother was private and cannot be given in full. The most essential points of it however were told afterward. It was readily admitted that he was worthy of Sarah's hand and heart.

But mamma, said Sarah, how would it look to other people for me to have to give an answer in one short hour—only sixty minutes—jump at a hasty conclusion—and to think how my young friends would jeer and laugh at me. Wouldn't they tease me to death. No, ma, I can never face that music.

But stop my child, and listen to me. There is not a young lady in the city that would not

JUMP AT THE OFFER

Made you. Let them laugh. Girls must have something to laugh at, but it won't hurt you. Tell him yes, emphatically. If he were a stranger whose antecedents were unknown to us however prepossessing in person and manners, or profuse in his professions of love I would withhold my consent. But we have long known him, his moral character is without reproach, he is amiable, kind hearted and sincere, a fine scholar with an honorable position in the college, and he makes no false pretences. You know just what he is. What more do you want?

But, mamma, I don't know that he loves me, he hasn't ever said so.

O, well, daughter, never mind that. Generally, those who are loudest in their professions of love have least of the pure article. You can teach him by example to love you. It is far better than precept.

Leaning her head upon her mother's bosom Sarah, [illegible] in a submissive tone:

Well, ma, just as you say—I'll tell him yes, but although the hour isn't half out we'll not go down until the last minute of the hour.

At the expiration of the

FIFTY NINTH MINUTE

They returned to the Professor and papa, Sarah still blushing, but more calm than before. Then, with a firmness that astonished herself as well as her parents she extended her hand to the Professor and said:

Yes sir, if papa consents.

He gave his consent without hesitancy, and it was readily agreed by all that the wedding should take place a week from that time. Then Professor Foster with his usual calmness, conscious of having done his duty, withdrew to report progress to his friends.

Well in due time the Professor went to the clerk for his license. The clerk informed him that the law required a bond and security in the sum of $1,250, to be void on condition that there was no legal objection to the proposed union of the two persons named. Oh never mind the bond, Mr Clerk, I will pay $1 150 down and will hand you the balance in a day or two. After, further explanation by the clerk, the Professor soon complied with the law and obtained his license. At the appointed time

THE WEDDING

Came off in the best style of the city, and the company enjoyed the occasion with the greatest zest. The hours flew like humming birds. As the clock struck twelve the Professor picked up his hat and started to his boarding house. His principal attendant surmising his intention, followed him to the front door and informed that matrimonial etiquette required him to stay and board and lodge at the house of his father-in-law until he and his wife wished to live by themselves that he would be furnished with a room adjacent to Sarah's room in order that if she happened to get thirsty, he might be near to get her a drink of fresh water.

In the morning the bride and groom were greeted with the smiles of the family together with those of some early callers and inquiries were made if they had slept well. B[illegible] responded that they had

NEVER SLEPT [illegible]

In their lives. [illegible] with his [illegible] simplicity that he was happy to say Sarah did not call for water during the whole night. That last remark was quite a riddle to her and she looked curious, but said nothing, no one venturing to ask him to rise and explain. He did not know it was a joke played upon him until the attendant told [illegible] company.

Finally the happy couple went to housekeeping and never were man and wife more heartily congratulated or more highly esteemed than they were. They were the favorites in the city. Never was wife more [illegible] or husband more kind [illegible]

PROVIDING FOR THE LARDER

Only as Sarah taught him. One little incident may suffice to illustrate. She told him one day to get some [illegible] He went to the store, and told the clerk he wanted to get some rice. [illegible] inquired the clerk. O not much, said the Professor. I reckon three or four bushels will do for the present. The clerk was very sorry to say they had not so much on hand but that they would soon have more. The clerk persuaded him to try and make it do for a few days with some fifteen or twenty pounds. Sarah and the clerk were [illegible] the only ones who laughed over the incident. He [illegible] laugh later the three or four bushels afterwards. [illegible] the Professor and his wife are still living, they will [illegible] well stricken in years, and it [illegible] sketch or [illegible] early lives [illegible] errors in it they will pardon the w[illegible]

A Nashville man was awakened the other night by a pain [illegible] that the chloroform was in that [illegible] bottle of camphor which he kept on the table for instant use and commenced to apply it with vigorous rubbings to his abdomen. He experienced immediate relief but was considerably surprised at not perceiving the strong scent of camphor. Suspecting that he might have made a mistake he lighted the gas and made an inspection which resulted in the highly satisfactory discovery that instead of camphor he had used a bottle of [illegible]

FINANCE AND COMMERCE

Financial

[illegible]

[illegible] The prospects for [illegible] trade [illegible] the leading [illegible] good [illegible] unusually [illegible] and money [illegible] Atlantic [illegible] health [illegible] Private [illegible] dispatches [illegible] report [illegible] [illegible] counties [illegible] found [illegible] statement of the New York [illegible] the twenty-six per cent [illegible] [illegible] the Bank are close on to fifty millions. Two of the leading banks state that the [illegible] resorted to the novel expedient [illegible] to induce bankers to ship [illegible] which however did not succeed.

European Wheat Crops

According to latest advices the [illegible] does not promise to be abundant but with fair weather the quality [illegible] Crops in Austria and Germany promise well [illegible] southern Russia and the Caucasian region they are still suffering from drouth. [illegible] that in Hungary and Servia the crops will be a small yield than had been anticipated owing to the same cause.

The English Iron Trade.

English newspapers concede a great falling off in the export trade of iron. A few manufacturers keep up a fair export to America but the [illegible] will not compare with the past. Birmingham correspondence of the [illegible] impossible to do business with the continent [illegible] or with America at anything like our present high schedules. It is within our knowledge that [illegible] more [illegible] who have bought bars at [illegible] and plates at [illegible] declined to buy them shipped even at these figures which are [illegible] for competition with native products. In one case a German merchant [illegible] be sent from the works [illegible] by auction in this country and he would [illegible] loss.

New York Markets

Latest accounts by mail from New York show that the improved tone of the wool market is sustained and there have been some pretty heavy purchases of new clip Western [illegible] at [illegible] native fleece which leaves but a slender margin of profit in the present unsatisfactory condition of the woolen goods market. Sales of California [illegible] 400 bales new clip to arrive [illegible] cents and about an equal quantity on the spot at 20 @ 27½ cents for spring and 17@25 for fall, as to condition. There have been considerable sales of California borax at 20@22 cents, the latter price for [illegible] T & Co's brand. Quicksilver has advanced to $1 12 [illegible] Bags of coal from Cornwall has brought 26 cents. Anthracite coal tends upward owing to artificial efforts to shorten the production. It is [illegible] at $5 25@6 25 by the cargo, as to quality.

In Error.

The Salem Statesman says:

Wheat brings about five cents per cental more in San Francisco than it did this time last year and sells for about seven pence less in Liverpool.

Either the Statesman or the telegraph is at fault as to the price at Liverpool as the quotations now range from 11s 9d for average California to [illegible] Club. One year ago the quotation was 11s 6d.

Freights at the East.

A letter from New York to the Call of San Francisco dated July 26th says:

Freights to California by Cape Horn remain nominally firm with business slow. The scarcity of ships continues and it is going to be difficult for lines to keep supplied unless rates advance. The Lydia Seifield the only ship in port suitable for a long voyage, has been taken to go to Boston and load for Calcutta and the Anna Decatur at Boston goes hence to Madras and Calcutta and back at $11 gold per ton for the round trip. The new bark Martha Davis 900 tons is to load at Boston for San Francisco. The bark Mary E Packer a California trader goes from Boston to Talcahuano and Valparaiso and the Heiress from Boston to Liverpool—all at much better rates it is said than they could realize in the California trade. There is not an available long voyage ship here or at Boston. In all departments of the Atlantic carrying trade good rates prevail with the business restricted by the scarcity of tonnage. To German Baltic ports 10 shillings per barrel has been paid on refined petroleum which is the top rate of the season. To British ports the current rates for grain are [illegible] per quarter.
